

"HAVE CHOLERA!" SHE CRIED.

Overworked Nurse Gets Off North Brother Island.

Drink Crazes Her and She Causes a Panic in Brooklyn.

Sarah Harding, a nurse from North Brother Island, was a prisoner in the Lee Avenue Police Court, Williamsburg, this morning on a charge of drunkenness.

The woman in her condition imagined she had the cholera, and claimed to have broken through the quarantine regulations. She went along the streets last night shouting, "I have the cholera. Send for the police!"

Her face was red from drink and spotted, and when exhausted from her efforts she fell sprawling to the sidewalk.

When the ambulance arrived the woman was lifted in it in a ghastly manner by the frightened policemen.

At the police station she said that she had been nursing typhoid patients and, feeling bad, had taken some whiskey, which left a bad effect.

Justice Goetting gave her a lecture and told her to go back to the island.

JUDGE WELDE AROUSED BY FIRE.

His Handsome Home Damaged $3,000 by a Blaze in the Basement.

The residence of Police Justice Charles Welde at 77 East One Hundred and Twenty-fourth street was on fire at an early hour this morning.

Judge Welde was alone in the house. His family have been summoned at Lake View, and have not yet returned to the city.

The fire broke out about 4:30 o'clock. It started in the dining-room. The basement of the house is a four-story brown-stone structure, well appointed and elegantly furnished.

Judge Welde was asleep on the second floor. A passing milkman discovered the fire and aroused the Judge by pulling the bell.

The fire spread rapidly, and the flames to the basement. Smoke, however, ruined the handsome fresco work on the ceilings and walls in the parlors on the first floor.

Judge Welde thinks his loss will be about $3,000. He cannot imagine how the fire originated.

Unknown Boy Killed by Car.

A boy about sixteen years of age was run over by a train on the Newark and New York Railroad at the Hackensack River last night and instantly killed. A boy named Debernard, of 80 Wallace street, Newark, who was with the boy, said the latter resided at Newton street, that city, but could not give his name.

SHIPPING NEWS.

ALMANAC FOR TO-DAY.

Sun rises, 5.32; Sun sets, 6.25; Moon rises, 7.01. HIGH WATER TO-DAY, 8.04. LOW WATER TO-DAY, 1.27.

PORT OF NEW YORK.

ARRIVED.

Steamer John G. Galt, Capt. Crawford, from Jacksonville Sept. 6, with merchandise to W. A. Galt.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

Steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from Liverpool Aug. 31 and Queensboro Sept. 1, with passengers and cargo.

THE WORLD

To-morrow Morning Will Contain

The Fullest and Best Reports of the Sullivan and Corbett Fight.

WHERE IS SOLOMON?

The Murdered Russian's Room-Mate Sought by the Police.

Aizenstadt Left an Unfinished Letter Saying He Had 35,000 Roubles.

The Autopsy Discloses That Death Was Due to Strangulation.

Developments to-day in the case of the murdered Russian, Lazarus Aizenstadt, who was found in the bushes along Fort Hamilton avenue, in New Utrecht, Monday afternoon, showed that the victim was wealthy and was undoubtedly murdered for his money.

As stated in THE EVENING WORLD'S report extra yesterday, the clothing on the body was identified by J. Varschowsky, a tailor of 184 Bowers, as a suit made Aug. 32 for one "Lazarus Isaac."

At the time of ordering the clothing Varschowsky's customer was accompanied by one Solomon, who was a fellow-lodger with Aizenstadt at 109 East Broadway, and Solomon acted as interpreter. The name Aizenstadt was understood by Varschowsky to be "Isaac," and Solomon didn't take the trouble to correct the error.

After the identity of the murdered man was established it was easy to discover nearly all the facts in the mystery excepting the identity of the murderer or murderers, and the police have a well-grounded belief that they will soon establish that fact, too.

Meanwhile Solomon is missing and the officers are hunting for him.

Mrs. Emma Gillardon keeps a lodging-house at 109 East Broadway and she rented Aizenstadt a room on the second floor Aug. 6. He kept pretty close to his room and read and wrote a great deal. He paid $10 in advance for a month's rent of his room, and Mrs. Gillardon said he apparently had plenty of money.

Aizenstadt asked the lodger, Solomon, to take him to a tailor, and they went to Varschowsky's.

While at Mrs. Gillardon's Aizenstadt spoke of buying a farm and referred to a payment of $10,000, which he would have to make. Saturday last two strangers visited Aizenstadt and left about 4 o'clock P. M., after which a third man called on the wealthy lodger and remained a half hour.

About a half hour after that Mrs. Gillardon saw Aizenstadt himself leave the house, and said that the last time she saw him alive.

The visits of the two strangers together and the single caller later on Saturday seem to point to a carefully arranged conspiracy to murder Aizenstadt for his money.

The theory of the police is that Aizenstadt was lured away on the pretext of looking at a farm, which his murderers first got him lured to, and it was absolutely no doubt that the police think that Aizenstadt must have had from 20,000 to 30,000 roubles on his person, and most of it in Russian notes.

Why the police are so much interested in Solomon's whereabouts is because a piece of rope exactly similar to that found in Aizenstadt's room was found in Solomon's room yesterday.

It was expected that Mrs. Gillardon would be taken to Brooklyn this morning to identify a man whom the Brooklyn police are said to suspect to be one of the two men who called on Aizenstadt last Saturday afternoon.

This suspect, the police claim, has been mixed up in many swindling firm deals. When taken to Brooklyn this morning a reporter this morning Mrs. Gillardon said:

While it is true that I was taken to Brooklyn with my daughter to view the body of the murdered man in the morgue, I know nothing at all about being confronted with any prisoner. There is absolutely no doubt that the murdered man was Aizenstadt.

It was known that Aizenstadt had 35,000 roubles. Mrs. Gillardon was asked, "Did he let an unbalanced letter in his room addressed to his relatives in Russia, in that letter he makes the statement, 'I think that he had 35,000 roubles. The letter is in the possession of the Brooklyn police.'"

Solomon and Aizenstadt occupied the same room. The rope which was found there was a very fine white wash line of European make. I did not see the rope that was twisted around Aizenstadt's neck, and so could not say whether they were parts of the same line.

The restaurant-keeper, Turkel, of 153 East Broadway, said to an EVENING WORLD reporter this morning:

"Solomon was quite familiar with the English language. He lived in London for some time. Somebody told me that the man's history was not altogether creditable. I cannot recall who told me so. From my own observation I know that he used to sponge on Aizenstadt."

"As to Aizenstadt, I never knew a better natured man. He spoke nicely to everybody and was a great favorite with the children."

Terkel gave the following description of Solomon:

"Twenty-five years old, 5 feet 4 inches tall, very stout, round smooth face, having a very slight brown mustache, large dark brown eyes, fair skin with plump lips and there, feet strikingly large."

"When I last saw him," said Turkel, "he had on a long blue cutaway coat, brown vest and light checked trousers. He also had an enormously large black derby hat."

Harris, the owner of 25-Broad street, who was yesterday taken to the morgue to identify the body, as one of Aizenstadt's cards was found on Aizenstadt's clothes, said to an EVENING WORLD reporter:

"I saw one of the morning's papers that my friend had been killed. I went to the morgue. This is utterly false."

Mrs. Glickman herself appeared at this point and said:

"I was not even permitted to view the body; much less did I say about it. My husband is a peddler and may have given Aizenstadt his card."

"Yes," broke in Glickman, "I give my cards to hundreds of people, but I remember only few of them."

Harris, the owner of 25-Broad street, who was yesterday taken to the morgue to identify the body, as one of Aizenstadt's cards was found on Aizenstadt's clothes, said to an EVENING WORLD reporter:

"I saw one of the morning's papers that my friend had been killed. I went to the morgue. This is utterly false."

Mrs. Glickman herself appeared at this point and said:

"I was not even permitted to view the body; much less did I say about it. My husband is a peddler and may have given Aizenstadt his card."

"Yes," broke in Glickman, "I give my cards to hundreds of people, but I remember only few of them."

Harris, the owner of 25-Broad street, who was yesterday taken to the morgue to identify the body, as one of Aizenstadt's cards was found on Aizenstadt's clothes, said to an EVENING WORLD reporter:

"I saw one of the morning's papers that my friend had been killed. I went to the morgue. This is utterly false."

Mrs. Glickman herself appeared at this point and said:

"I was not even permitted to view the body; much less did I say about it. My husband is a peddler and may have given Aizenstadt his card."

DEATH OF POET WHITTIER.

The End Came Painlessly at 4.30 This Morning.

Sketch of the Life and Works of the Beloved Quaker.

JOHN GREENLEAF WHITTIER.

His nearest relatives and Dr. Douglas were at his bedside when death came, and he seemed to be conscious of his surroundings to the last moment. The funeral will take place at Amesbury, Mass., at 2.30 P. M. Saturday next.

Harris, the owner of 25-Broad street, who was yesterday taken to the morgue to identify the body, as one of Aizenstadt's cards was found on Aizenstadt's clothes, said to an EVENING WORLD reporter:

"I saw one of the morning's papers that my friend had been killed. I went to the morgue. This is utterly false."

Mrs. Glickman herself appeared at this point and said:

"I was not even permitted to view the body; much less did I say about it. My husband is a peddler and may have given Aizenstadt his card."

"Yes," broke in Glickman, "I give my cards to hundreds of people, but I remember only few of them."

Harris, the owner of 25-Broad street, who was yesterday taken to the morgue to identify the body, as one of Aizenstadt's cards was found on Aizenstadt's clothes, said to an EVENING WORLD reporter:

"I saw one of the morning's papers that my friend had been killed. I went to the morgue. This is utterly false."

Mrs. Glickman herself appeared at this point and said:

"I was not even permitted to view the body; much less did I say about it. My husband is a peddler and may have given Aizenstadt his card."

"Yes," broke in Glickman, "I give my cards to hundreds of people, but I remember only few of them."

Harris, the owner of 25-Broad street, who was yesterday taken to the morgue to identify the body, as one of Aizenstadt's cards was found on Aizenstadt's clothes, said to an EVENING WORLD reporter:

"I saw one of the morning's papers that my friend had been killed. I went to the morgue. This is utterly false."

Mrs. Glickman herself appeared at this point and said:

"I was not even permitted to view the body; much less did I say about it. My husband is a peddler and may have given Aizenstadt his card."

"Yes," broke in Glickman, "I give my cards to hundreds of people, but I remember only few of them."

Harris, the owner of 25-Broad street, who was yesterday taken to the morgue to identify the body, as one of Aizenstadt's cards was found on Aizenstadt's clothes, said to an EVENING WORLD reporter:

"I saw one of the morning's papers that my friend had been killed. I went to the morgue. This is utterly false."

Mrs. Glickman herself appeared at this point and said:

"I was not even permitted to view the body; much less did I say about it. My husband is a peddler and may have given Aizenstadt his card."

"Yes," broke in Glickman, "I give my cards to hundreds of people, but I remember only few of them."

Harris, the owner of 25-Broad street, who was yesterday taken to the morgue to identify the body, as one of Aizenstadt's cards was found on Aizenstadt's clothes, said to an EVENING WORLD reporter:

"I saw one of the morning's papers that my friend had been killed. I went to the morgue. This is utterly false."

Mrs. Glickman herself appeared at this point and said:

"I was not even permitted to view the body; much less did I say about it. My husband is a peddler and may have given Aizenstadt his card."

"Yes," broke in Glickman, "I give my cards to hundreds of people, but I remember only few of them."

Harris, the owner of 25-Broad street, who was yesterday taken to the morgue to identify the body, as one of Aizenstadt's cards was found on Aizenstadt's clothes, said to an EVENING WORLD reporter:

"I saw one of the morning's papers that my friend had been killed. I went to the morgue. This is utterly false."

Mrs. Glickman herself appeared at this point and said:

"I was not even permitted to view the body; much less did I say about it. My husband is a peddler and may have given Aizenstadt his card."

"Yes," broke in Glickman, "I give my cards to hundreds of people, but I remember only few of them."

Harris, the owner of 25-Broad street, who was yesterday taken to the morgue to identify the body, as one of Aizenstadt's cards was found on Aizenstadt's clothes, said to an EVENING WORLD reporter:

"I saw one of the morning's papers that my friend had been killed. I went to the morgue. This is utterly false."

Mrs. Glickman herself appeared at this point and said:

"I was not even permitted to view the body; much less did I say about it. My husband is a peddler and may have given Aizenstadt his card."

"Yes," broke in Glickman, "I give my cards to hundreds of people, but I remember only few of them."

Harris, the owner of 25-Broad street, who was yesterday taken to the morgue to identify the body, as one of Aizenstadt's cards was found on Aizenstadt's clothes, said to an EVENING WORLD reporter:

"I saw one of the morning's papers that my friend had been killed. I went to the morgue. This is utterly false."

PARK BOARD GIVES CONTRACTS.

A Request to Place Greeley's Statue at Thirty-third Street.

At the regular meeting of the Park Board today seven bids were opened for the construction of a new boiler-house for the Metropolitan Museum of Art. They were as follows:

P. Gallagher, $64,488; Thomas Dwyer, $47,700; J. H. & H. D. Devere, $51,000; Mahoney & Watson, $55,350; George Vassar & Sons, $45,000; J. J. & J. J. Quinn, $45,000; Booth Bros. and Harriman Ice Granite Company, $67,100.

Contractor John Pierce was given more time for the completion of the north wing of the Museum of Natural History if he would increase the work.

Bids for providing an electric light plant for the north wing of the Museum of Natural History, now under construction, were received from the New York Electrical Equipment Company, $21,400, and the General Electrical Company, $22,400.

A petition from the Manhattan Athletic Club asking permission for a bicycle path, with lanterns, through Central Park on the second and third floors and Broadway, instead of in the open space under the shadow of Sixth Avenue, was referred to the board.

The matter was referred to the board.

A petition from the Committee of the New York State Historical Association for the erection of a statue to John G. Whittier, at Fifty-ninth street, Central Park, was referred to the board.

The committee urged that the statue be placed at the base of the triangular park at Fifty-ninth street and Broadway, instead of in the open space under the shadow of Sixth Avenue, was referred to the board.

The matter was referred to the board.

A petition from the Committee of the New York State Historical Association for the erection of a statue to John G. Whittier, at Fifty-ninth street, Central Park, was referred to the board.

The committee urged that the statue be placed at the base of the triangular park at Fifty-ninth street and Broadway, instead of in the open space under the shadow of Sixth Avenue, was referred to the board.

The matter was referred to the board.

A petition from the Committee of the New York State Historical Association for the erection of a statue to John G. Whittier, at Fifty-ninth street, Central Park, was referred to the board.

The committee urged that the statue be placed at the base of the triangular park at Fifty-ninth street and Broadway, instead of in the open space under the shadow of Sixth Avenue, was referred to the board.

The matter was referred to the board.

A petition from the Committee of the New York State Historical Association for the erection of a statue to John G. Whittier, at Fifty-ninth street, Central Park, was referred to the board.

The committee urged that the statue be placed at the base of the triangular park at Fifty-ninth street and Broadway, instead of in the open space under the shadow of Sixth Avenue, was referred to the board.

The matter was referred to the board.

A petition from the Committee of the New York State Historical Association for the erection of a statue to John G. Whittier, at Fifty-ninth street, Central Park, was referred to the board.

The committee urged that the statue be placed at the base of the triangular park at Fifty-ninth street and Broadway, instead of in the open space under the shadow of Sixth Avenue, was referred to the board.

The matter was referred to the board.

A petition from the Committee of the New York State Historical Association for the erection of a statue to John G. Whittier, at Fifty-ninth street, Central Park, was referred to the board.

The committee urged that the statue be placed at the base of the triangular park at Fifty-ninth street and Broadway, instead of in the open space under the shadow of Sixth Avenue, was referred to the board.

The matter was referred to the board.

A petition from the Committee of the New York State Historical Association for the erection of a statue to John G. Whittier, at Fifty-ninth street, Central Park, was referred to the board.

The committee urged that the statue be placed at the base of the triangular park at Fifty-ninth street and Broadway, instead of in the open space under the shadow of Sixth Avenue, was referred to the board.

The matter was referred to the board.

A petition from the Committee of the New York State Historical Association for the erection of a statue to John G. Whittier, at Fifty-ninth street, Central Park, was referred to the board.

The committee urged that the statue be placed at the base of the triangular park at Fifty-ninth street and Broadway, instead of in the open space under the shadow of Sixth Avenue, was referred to the board.

The matter was referred to the board.

A petition from the Committee of the New York State Historical Association for the erection of a statue to John G. Whittier, at Fifty-ninth street, Central Park, was referred to the board.

The committee urged that the statue be placed at the base of the triangular park at Fifty-ninth street and Broadway, instead of in the open space under the shadow of Sixth Avenue, was referred to the board.

The matter was referred to the board.

A petition from the Committee of the New York State Historical Association for the erection of a statue to John G. Whittier, at Fifty-ninth street, Central Park, was referred to the board.

The committee urged that the statue be placed at the base of the triangular park at Fifty-ninth street and Broadway, instead of in the open space under the shadow of Sixth Avenue, was referred to the board.

The matter was referred to the board.

A petition from the Committee of the New York State Historical Association for the erection of a statue to John G. Whittier, at Fifty-ninth street, Central Park, was referred to the board.

The committee urged that the statue be placed at the base of the triangular park at Fifty-ninth street and Broadway, instead of in the open space under the shadow of Sixth Avenue, was referred to the board.

The matter was referred to the board.

A petition from the Committee of the New York State Historical Association for the erection of a statue to John G. Whittier, at Fifty-ninth street, Central Park, was referred to the board.

The committee urged that the statue be placed at the base of the triangular park at Fifty-ninth street and Broadway, instead of in the open space under the shadow of Sixth Avenue, was referred to the board.

RAILROAD STRIKE IMPENDS.

Lehigh and Jersey Central Men Await McLeod's Answer.

The Grievance Committee appointed at Sunday's secret meeting in Easton of the Jersey Central and Lehigh Valley employees of the Lehigh Valley Railroad to demand the discharge of five engineers discharged as it was alleged, to see President McLeod, but failed to get satisfaction from any of the other officials.

The committee attempted again this morning to get an interview with Mr. McLeod, but was unsuccessful, owing to his attendance at the court investigation.

The Lehigh Valley Railroad has not yet secured an interview with President McLeod.

The committee attempted again this morning to get an interview with Mr. McLeod, but was unsuccessful, owing to his attendance at the court investigation.